Editing Services

Developmental Editing

Timing: Once first draft of manuscript is complete

A developmental edit provides a thorough, in-depth review of your manuscript, noting structural and style edits as well as smaller mechanical ones. Be prepared for major revisions that will make your manuscript sing! A developmental editor always has your target reader and audience in mind and will make sure your message is engaging, organized well, clearly communicated, and appropriate for your reading audience.

Rate determined by word count | $0.045/word

Copy Editing

Timing: Before sending to design for interior formatting

The primary concerns of a copy edit are grammar, spelling, punctuation, and adherence to Chicago Manual of Style. Copy editors address the format of citations, flag any copyright issues, if applicable, and create a style guide for the manuscript to ensure consistency throughout. A copy editor will query the author if there is a need for major revision to improve clarity or concise writing.

Rate determined by word count | $0.03-$0.035/word

Proofreading

Timing: Before print when final interior file is approved

A proofread is the final step of editing when the manuscript is formatted and ready for print. This step of editing addresses any remaining spelling and grammar issues introduced during revisions, as well as proper formatting of citations and standard elements like headers, footers, and an accurate table of contents.

Writing Support

Writing Coaching

12-week coaching + outlining session

With writing coaching, we start with an outlining session to create a structure for your book, create a writing plan, then meet weekly to go over content. You complete writing homework each week based on the prompts and support I provide at each session and will finish a full manuscript by the end of the 12 weeks. This path is best for those who enjoy writing and can devote 2-3 hours per week to completing the writing assignments.

$250 1-hour outlining session | $100 1-hour coaching call

Editing Consults

Booked as needed in 30-minute increments

Editing consults are designed to provide professional editorial support as you are writing your book or walking through self-editing steps. You can book a call whenever you have chapters or other content you'd like to discuss before moving into an official developmental edit or copy edit. Most authors use these calls to receive feedback on their specific chapter content, target audience, overall structure, or flow from chapter to chapter.
